

Tokelau

NO ADVANCEMENT

Although research found no evidence that child labor exists in Tokelau, in 2024, the government made no advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government has not established adequate legal protections to prevent the worst forms of child labor. For instance, the law does not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances; or the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, Tokelau has not established a minimum age for work and lacks a law that prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children.

PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists on Tokelau.

SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Tokelau.

Area	Suggested Action
Legal Framework	Ratify ILO Convention 182, the convention concerning the prohibition of and immediate action on the elimination of the worst forms of child labor.
	Ratify the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.
	Ratify the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict.
	Ratify the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography.
	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.
	Establish a minimum age for work of at least age 16 that equals the compulsory age of education, establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work, and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit forced labor, including debt bondage and slavery.
	Ensure that laws prohibit the trafficking of children domestically and internationally for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor, and do not require the use of force to be established for the crime of trafficking.
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the forced or compulsory recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.
	Ensure that free public education is afforded to all children, regardless of citizenship, legal, or resident status.

BARRIERS TO EDUCATION ACCESS

Although education in Tokelau is free for citizens, the territory is isolated, and unreliable access to transportation and telecommunication services limit students’ access to education. Additionally, children without birth certificates and those without permanent resident status are not afforded free public education by law, though there is no evidence this happens in practice.

LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tokelau is a territory of New Zealand; however, New Zealand statutory law does not apply to Tokelau unless it is expressly extended to Tokelau. International treaties are applied only with the consent of the Government of Tokelau. As a result, New Zealand's ratification of international conventions does not apply automatically to Tokelau. None of the key international conventions concerning child labor have been extended to Tokelau, including ILO Convention 182 on the Worst Forms of Child Labor; the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UN CRC); the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict; the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography; or the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons. In addition, Tokelau's laws do not meet international standards on the minimum age for work; the prohibition of slavery, debt bondage, and forced labor; and the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Tokelau has not established legislation on the minimum age for work, nor has the government determined the minimum age for hazardous work or the types of work that are hazardous for children. The government also does not prohibit slavery or slavery-like practices such as forced labor. Tokelau's trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or the trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. In addition, the government does not criminalize the use, procuring, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. Tokelau has also not criminalized the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. Although there are no armed forces in Tokelau, the law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. Finally, undocumented children and those without permanent resident status are not afforded free public education by law, though there is no evidence this happens in practice.

ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor, including its worst forms. However, the Government of Tokelau has established an institutional mechanism for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor.

COORDINATION, POLICIES, AND PROGRAMS

As there is no evidence of a child labor problem, there appears to be no need for policies, programs, or a mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor.
