Oracle's action oriented programs have been established to support the inclusion of women, minorities, protected veterans, and disabled workers in a number of ways including: recruitment; advancement and retention of talent (recruit, retain and advance the best talent); performance; talent optimization; and employee engagement. Internship Programs, Scholarships and Educational Outreach

Internships at Oracle are a recruitment source that can be used to increase the representation of diverse talent. We provide scholastic scholarships and educational outreach to underrepresented groups majoring in IT-related fields.

By equipping employees with development opportunities to grow and become more successful, the pool of top talent is expanded and diverse. Identification of Problem Areas

Oracle continues to make significant efforts in locating qualified minorities and women, and aggressively pursues qualified candidates in a competitive market. Oracle promotes diversity to attract and employ qualified minorities and women across the nation. Although the overall representation of women and minorities at Oracle is good, African American, Latino, and female utilization in some job groups needs improvement. Improvement of utilization in specific job groups is addressed through the development of recruiting strategies and mentoring programs, and is addressed by organization and location. Additionally, Oracle has a job posting system that makes all available vacancies known to applicants and employees.

General Policy Statement

Oracle is committed to ensuring an environment for all employees that supports and rewards employee performance on the basis of merit and potential. Oracle prohibits discrimination against or harassment of an employee or candidate for employment because of a disability or protected veteran status. This policy is also incorporated into Oracle’s overall Equal Employment Opportunity policy.

Oracle makes good faith efforts to attract and retain employees with disabilities, veterans, protected veterans, special disabled and other persons and creates partnerships with community based organizations to create inroads and foster understanding of issues faced by employees and applicants. A current list of partnerships and good faith efforts is available upon request. Applicants and employees are asked to voluntarily identify themselves if they have (or have had) a disability and/or are a protected veteran. Oracle’s internal processes encourage consideration of the job qualifications of applicants with disabilities, known disabled veteran applicants, Vietnam Era veteran applicants, and other protected veteran applicants for job vacancies filled through hiring or promotion. Additionally, on at least an annual basis, Oracle reviews the outreach and recruitment efforts it has taken over the previous twelve months to evaluate their effectiveness in identifying and recruiting qualified protected veterans and qualified individuals with disabilities.

Development & Execution of Affirmative Action Programs

Oracle also periodically reviews its personnel processes to ensure this obligation is carried out, and makes necessary revisions or implements new processes when appropriate.

Oracle will periodically review, including each time a job is posted, the physical and mental job qualifications to assure that they are job related and consistent with business necessity and do not necessarily exclude the disabled from employment opportunities. Information obtained regarding physical and/or mental conditions is maintained on a confidential basis.

Other Implementation of Affirmative Action Programs

Interns are assigned internal coaches who are veterans from the cadre of Oracle managers and each line of business (LOB) that supports the program has an executive sponsor at the VP or above level.
