Most private sector employees have the right to engage in concerted activity with their co-workers, whether they are a member of a union or not.

Examples of concerted activity:
- Discussing work conditions with co-workers while at work
- Discussing wages with co-workers, media outlets, and even on social media
- Looking into and sharing information about worker organizing
- Seeking out a representative to collectively bargain on behalf of you and your co-workers

Learn more about your right to a union
Workers have the right to discuss their wages—whether or not they’re represented by a union.

Find out more at NLRB.gov or 1-844-762-6572