Location Description

Our main transit facility is located in rural South King County on the Muckleshoot Indian Reservation. We service rural residents by providing rural routes that interconnect with urban outlets. Our transit program is focused on serving the rural residents of the Muckleshoot Indian Reservation and South King County. One of the main goals as highlighted throughout the Transit Plan and our grant application is to provide transportation services to rural residents. For example, the closest grocery store is over 12 miles round trip. With this being said, we are focusing on providing rural residents with access to urban areas for employment, basic needs such as grocery shopping, medical appointments and other daily necessities.
