

WOMEN'S BUREAU
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
90 YEARS: STILL WORKING

in collaboration with

New York Women's Agenda, Equal Pay Coalition NYC
& The Murphy Institute

present

Learn More Now to Earn More Later: Understanding your rights and the skills to achieve equal pay 77 cents to every dollar? Even now?

Over her career, the average full-time female worker loses $434,000 in wages as a result of the wage gap. Join us for a discussion on equal pay and learn how to earn every dollar you deserve.

Monday, August 16th

5:00 - 6:30 p.m.

Joseph S. Murphy Institute for Worker Education

25 West 43rd Street (between 5th and 6th Ave), 18th Floor
New York, NY

To RSVP or for more information contact:

khan.shameena@dol.gov or T: (646) 264-3789

Women in the workforce are vital to the nation's economic security. The mission of the Women's Bureau is to develop policies and standards and conduct inquiries to safeguard the interests of working women; to advocate for their equality and economic security for themselves and their families; and to promote quality work environments. For more information about the Women's Bureau, please visit our website at www.dol.gov/wb or contact us at (646) 264-3789.